'Ceramics' Is Catching

The hobby and business of ceramics is NOT a disease, certainly, but the three "Tignor sisters" (above) - now Mrs. Doris T. Hackworth (left) Mrs. Eula Franklin (center) and Mrs. Helen Callicoat (right) agree that the pleasure in kiln-firing glazed greenware and in preparing molds and watching the results emerge from the kiln is a thrill and pleasure that's easy to 'catch'. As part of the growing number of men and women enjoying a hobby that can also be a part-time or full-time business the three sisters enjoy comparing progress in their individual pursuits. Mrs. Hackworth, from Tampa, Fla. enjoys adding broken glass bits to her ceramic ware, a procedure which spreads unusual color effects on ashtrays and other items. Mrs. Franklin, who shop, is on state road 634 between Appomattox and Evergreen has found that her shop there is so successful she is planning to enlarge the showroom and workroom areas. Mrs. Callicoat of Miami, combines a part-time job as dental assistant with full-time satisfaction in her kiln- and lately, in constructing "pineapple lamps" with multi-colored marbles adding to the glow and color release of the ceramices ware, itself. All in all, it's a new kind of "sister act", and ceramics students or buyers at any of the three sisters' shops should find much to "ooh and aah" over.

Appomattox county has many skilled craftsmen, and these three Virginians (two of them converted Floridians) are three charming examples of how much fun and pleasure a hobby/ business can provide.

FBLA MAKING PREPARATIONS FOR THE YEAR

The Appomattox County high School, Future Business Leaders of America, are busy preparing for the oncoming year.

During the month of July, Diane Smith, president of our chapter, and Dianne Williams, program chairman went to Massanetta for a week. It is a camp for FBLA members throughout the state. We received many new and exciting ideas for our chapter.

The chapter met on August 31, at which time the program of work for the coming year was discussed. Committees were then set up for the yearly project, social committees, and community projects.

On September 14, there was a call meeting of the members at which time, president, Diane Smith, appointed a committee for a campaign to urge 18 year olds to vote.

Our chapter has planned activities that increase business knowledge and skills. We will be involved in such things as school and community services, and financial and social activities.

COST-SHARING PROGRAM FOCUSES ON REBUILDING RURAL ENVIRONMENT

Re-building a quality environment is an increasing concern of both urban and rural people, according to J. P. Alvis, Jr., Chairman of the Appomattox County ASC Committee.

The Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP) has as its major purpose the improvement of the quality of life for all people, Mr. Alvis said. This improvement is accomplished through cost - sharing program with farmers and ranchers to prevent or abate agriculture - related pollution of water, land and air, and to conserve agricultural soil, water, woodland, and wildlife resources.

"While farmers and ranchers are the primary participants in REAP practices, we all receive benefits from the program," Chairman Alvis said. "Naturally, the local community where the practices are carried out benefits the most. Not just the farmer himself and his farm neighbors, but the whole community gets a boost from the pollution - abatement and conservation practices which the farmer undertakes."

For all persons interested in helping rebuild a quality environment, a leaflet on the role of the Rural Environmental Assistance Program is available through the Appomattox County ASCS Office, Mr. Alvis said.

He explained that the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service administers REAP through County ASC Committees elected by farmers and ranchers in the county.

Each REAP practice approved by the ASC County Committee must have related soil and water benefits.

The leaflet, "Rebuilding a Quality Environment Through Rural Environmental Assistance Program" explains some of the environmental problems encountered on farms and ranches, the way REAP helps in these problems, and how programs in each State and county are developed, administered and funded.

Many farmers will find this leaflet will add to their knowledge of REAP. For non-farmers, it provides an introduction to an environmental program at work in their own community and a better understanding of how agriculture can contribute to the total environmental effort.

Good Year - Good Taste

The tomatoes have never looked better, says E. O. Johnson, Route 2, Appomattox, and he brought these two beauties to the TIMES-VIRGINIAN office (above) to illustrate the point. One tomato on the left weighs one and one-half pounds with the one on the right, a whopping two-pounder. Lots of other good tasting produce has come from the Johnson garden, too, in this year of bountiful crops throughout the Appomattox area.

Vepco Pays $3 Million

Virginia Electric and Power Company recently paid over $3 million to Virginia State Treasurer Walter W. Craigie, Jr.

Vepco is the state's largest taxpayer.

The check for $3,025,600 is the company's third quarterly installment of its estimated 1972 state gross receipts tax of $12,102,220.

Total gross receipts tax payments being made this year for part of 1971 and most of 1972 will total $14,330,000.

Vepco had a tax bill of more than $51.4 million in 1970 including payments of $12.4 million to Virginia cities, towns and counties for gross receipts and property taxes.

The payment in 1971 of the 1972 gross receipts tax results from legislation passed by the General Assembly in 1968 providing for acceleration of payment of this tax beginning with quarterly payments during 1969.
